Tax-Inclusive Pricing

Taxes and pricing

☒ I enter prices with taxes (Gross prices)

Product prices are gross prices, which means you enter them with taxes included. Taxable customers see all product prices and fees, such as shipping, with taxes included. Only tax-exempt customers see prices without taxes. Total tax is calculated based on product gross price and applicable tax rate at checkout.

Calculation formula: $\text{Tax} = (\text{tax rate} * \text{price}) / (1 + \text{tax rate})$

☐ I enter prices without taxes (Net prices)

You enter product prices that do not include taxes (net prices). Customers see all product prices without taxes included. Fees, such as shipping and handling, are also displayed tax-exclusive. At checkout, tax is shown to taxable customers as a line item and is added to total price.

Calculation formula: $\text{Tax} = \text{tax rate} * \text{price}$

Please note that your product prices will not be automatically updated if you switch the pricing scheme. Check your product prices and update them manually after the switch to avoid unexpected price changes.

Example:

Price you enter (gross price):

€10,00

Price in store:

€10,00 incl. VAT 16%

Net subtotal: €8,62

VAT 16%: €1,38

Total: €10,00 incl. VAT

- For sellers in EU, AU, NZ, and IN who use tax-inclusive prices
- Enable the “gross prices” mode to be able to enter all prices with VAT or GST included
- Eliminates calculation of net prices, separate tax setup, and rounding errors
- Customers see the price at checkout in a more convenient and accurate format

Separate checkbox for return conditions of digital goods on the checkout.

According to German laws, every customer has a right to return purchases within 14 days for a full refund unless they have started downloading or streaming digital goods.

A merchant has a right to cancel the customer's right to return digital goods. Yet, they can do this only after receiving explicit consent from the customers.

We created a separate checkbox for return conditions of digital goods on the checkout.

The checkbox is mandatory if enabled: you can't proceed to the next checkout steps without checking it.

Smart product price format for EU merchants

Default product price format got smarter for the merchants from Europe

€ is the most common currency in Europe, however, the price format varies: the decimal separator can be either dot or comma, € sign can be shown before or after the number. See examples:

- 6,00 € is used in Germany (comma as a separator, € is placed after the number with a gap in-between)—it's the most popular price format in Europe
- € 6,00 in the Netherlands (comma as a separator, € is placed before the number with a gap in-between)
- €6.00 in Cyprus (dot as a separator, € is placed before the number with no gap in-between)

Online Store can automatically preselect the store currency and the default price format for all new merchants from any country who have just signed up with Online Store. So now, when a user from any European country signs up with Online Store, they get the price format exactly as they need: with a comma or a dot as a separator, € sign in the right place.

New tax fields at checkout for Italy.

€ is the most common currency in Europe, however, the price format varies: the decimal Merchants in Italy have to collect additional information from clients to reflect it in tax reports.

Depending on whether a client is a private person or a registered business, Online Store displays additional fields at checkout to collect necessary information.
